Article 371 of the Colombian Constitution establishes that Banco de la República (the Central Bank of Colombia) performs central banking functions and is organized as a legal entity of public law with administrative, financial, and technical autonomy, subject to its own legal framework. Likewise, according to Article 40 of Law 489 of 1998, Banco de la República is identified as a state entity or agency subject to a special regime granted by the Colombian Constitution and to the provisions established by the respective laws.

Accordingly, since Banco de la República is the only central banking entity with its own legal framework and administrative, financial, and technical autonomy, there are no other entities that make up the central banking sector.
