This book is considered to be a significant contribution to understanding the economic history of Colombia in the first half of the 20th century. Leading analysts who have examined the 1900-1940 period cite it as an essential source for their research. Despite its relevance, this text has not been available in bookstores for several decades, and people interested in reading it must look for a copy in large public or university libraries. This situation motivated the Editorial Committee of this collection to recommend its reissue.

"I must confess that the first time I had the opportunity to carefully examine a copy of this magnificent publication was in 1973 at one of the offices of the Colombian Coffee Growers Federation. I was pleasantly surprised by the richness of the information about the country and the high quality of its editing. Many years later, I managed to get a copy from a bookseller specialized in these types of historical jewels."
